Unit Descriptions

Unit 1 - Canada and the Great War - 1914-1919

In this unit students are introduced to the basics of historical inquiry and historical thinking as they explore the events that shaped Canada at the start of the twentieth century. Particular attention will be given to how Canada interacted with the international community with a focus on political history. Students will be asked to determine historical significance of events such as Vimy Ridge.

Unit 2 - Boom to Bust: Canada in the 1920s and 1930s

This unit deals with Canadian history in the inter-war decades. Students will investigate the impact of social action during this time, especially as it was found in the emerging middle class. Focus in this unit will be on economic and social history. Included in this unit is a Financial literacy component. The Historical Thinking Skills Cause and Consequence, and Historical Perspective will be prominent during this unit.

Unit 3 - Canadians in World War II -1939 - 1945

Students will explore the technological and social impacts on Canadian society during World War II. Students will look critically at Canada's response to minorities at home and abroad during this time period.

Unit 4 - Changing Values 1945 - 1968

This unit explores the changes that took place in Canada in the two decades after World War II. Students use concepts familiar in their own lives such as security and change as the basis for an understanding of Canada's social, political, and economic changes domestically as well as the connections the country had with the world. The Historical Thinking Skill of Continuity and Change and Historical Significance are highlighted during this time period.

Unit 5 - Trudeau Mania, Conflicts, and Economic Challenges 1968-1982

In this unit, students examine the conflicts and economic challenges that Canadians faced in the period 1968-1983. Examining primary and secondary sources and further developing a variety of historical skills that were introduced in earlier units introduce students introduced to the key events that have shaped modern Canada as we enter the twenty-first century. The Historical Thinking Skills of Continuity and Change and Historical Significance are highlighted during this time period.

Unit 6 - Towards the 21st Century 1983-2001

Students will examine key issues and persons of interest during this time period including NAFTA, Meech Lake, Elijah Harper, federal-provincial relations and Environmental issues. Historical Significance will be prominent in the lessons.

Unit 7 - Contemporary Canada: Living in the Post 9-11 Era

In this unit, students examine key issues that Canadians have faced from 2001 to the present. Students develop Historical Perspective and deduce Historical Significance to Canadians of international events such as the Sept. 11th 2001 attacks on the World Trade Centers in the United States, and Canada's role in Afghanistan.

Unit 8 - Culminating Activity - History Fair

In this unit, students perform the culminating tasks of the course by creating a history fair presentation showing how a topic has changed from 1919 to present. Students demonstrate an understanding of significant events in 20th Century Canadian History. Students also demonstrate the effective use of methods of historical inquiry.

Teaching/Learning Strategies

This course provides students the opportunity to develop historical inquiry and thinking skills. While each unit may highlight certain Historical Thinking Skills, students will apply the skills throughout the course as they explore, analyse, and reflect on history. A myriad of diverse teaching and learning strategies are chosen to prepare students for study at the University level in the Senior Secondary classes. These strategies will include formulating a thesis, identifying bias and viewpoint, debating, analysing primary sources and secondary sources, and problem solving are a focus of many activities. Focused inquiry, differentiating between primary and secondary sources, data analysis, note-taking, and guided Internet searches are examples of the research skills that students practice. Students have multiple opportunities to hone their skills in communication through formal presentations, response journals, artwork, writing in role, and persuasive paragraph writing. Tasks are designed to develop skills and concepts across a range of student learning styles with differentiation of product allowed on many assignments within teacher-selected options. Each unit overview states specific teaching/learning strategies. Many important skills are developed in the activities. Students are asked to demonstrate a synthesis of their learning by participating in the culminating course activity (Unit 8).

The subject discipline of History has its own particular ways in which language is used to express concepts. In order to help students, especially ESL/ELD students, teaching and learning strategies show formative attention to the following aspects of language in written and oral forms:

- specialized vocabulary/idioms
- wide range of tense use, active and passive voice
- words, phrases, and causal structures that indicate
- sequence/chronology
- cause-and-effect relationships-contrast/comparatives/superlatives
- statements of opinion, interpretation, inference
- statements of speculation, hypothesis, prediction
- statements of belief, intent, necessity, persuasion, evaluation, definition
- explanations of reason
- formation of questions for formal and informal circumstances, oral or written
- active listening skills, e.g., phrases and syntax that express encouragement, requests for repetition, clarification, and restatement
- activities such as reading/listening tasks (case study/video viewing) need a specific and concrete product expected of students
- completion of a graphic organizer/re-enactment or structured oral response
- note-taking/summarizing
- non-verbal communication skills, of particular importance to presentation tasks

Language development and the expression of concepts taught are greatly facilitated if written tasks are reinforced by oral tasks, and vice versa. Learners with difficulties benefit greatly if models or scaffolds for oral and written expressive communicative functions are initially provided by their teachers.

Evaluation

The final grade will be determined as follows:

- Seventy per cent of the grade will be based on evaluation conducted throughout the course. This portion of the grade should reflect the student’s most consistent level of achievement throughout the course, although special consideration should be given to more recent evidence of achievement.
- Thirty per cent of the grade will be based on a final evaluation administered at or towards the end of the course. This evaluation will be based on evidence from one or a combination of the following: an examination, a performance, an essay, and/or another method of evaluation suitable to the course content. The final evaluation allows the student an opportunity to demonstrate comprehensive achievement of the overall expectations for the course.

Program Planning

This course is offered to students living in isolated northern Ontario communities which do not have access to regular high school facilities, equipment, or teachers associated with secondary education. This course uses the internet for instruction, demonstration and research. It utilizes a student centered semi-virtual classroom which capitalizes on the strengths of internet program delivery to minimize the disadvantages of geographic remoteness.

Students are presented with instruction/activity via the internet. All lessons, assignments, questions and course materials are presented in this manner, with approved print materials available as student resources in each classroom. The student and instructor communicate via the internet, while a classroom mentor (a fully qualified teacher) assists students in completing tasks in a timely manner and provides tutoring as required.
